COURSE DESCRIPTION

Many writers have described the European “discovery” of the Americas as the single most important event in world history. A grandiose boon for some and an incalculable tragedy for others, in time this event catalyzed change for every human society on the globe. As a consequence, our food, clothing, politics, economics, language, music, dance, disease, and genetics have all been irreversibly altered. While this collision of distant worlds is a monumental story, it is also a very human story of individual European, Native, African, and American people who attempted to survive, understand, and succeed. What was life like for the conquerors, colonists, merchants, native and European aristocrats, slaves, nuns, governors, artisans, market women, or children of this new world? How do you govern an empire that is three months journey from your capitol city? How do you teach millions of people, without common language or ethnicity, to revere one king and one God? In such an incredibly diverse society, what were the rules for justice? What was proper, lady-like behavior for a woman if she was white, native, African, or mixed race? How did the government ensure justice and security without creating a police state? Why did some Native communities thrive while others collapsed? We will seek to answer some of these questions through reading original sources such as traveler accounts, court cases, religious tracts, journals, military records, official correspondence, and more.

NOTE: Find a description of these assignments in Canvas >> Supplementals >> “Assignments – Description”

- 1) Due dates:
 - a) Reading/Lecture Notes are due before every class by 1pm.
 - b) Link essays and paper assignments are due on Sunday 11:59pm.
- 2) Full Paper
 - a) The Full Paper is composed of six separate assignments: Skeleton, Draft 1, Draft 1 Revision Statement, Peer Edit, Final Draft, Revision Statement Revision Statement.
 - b) You must complete all six of these assignments in order to receive credit for any of them. If you fail to submit any of the six Paper assignments, you will receive a 0 on all of the parts (which will result in a failing grade in the course).
- 3) Final exam: Will be comprehensive, based on both reading and lecture materials. The format will imitate that of the “Link” essays and the “Final Draft” essay.

Grading: Numbered scores correspond to letter grades as follows: Numbers in the 90s are As, the 80s are Bs, the 70s are Cs, the 60s are Ds, and below 60 is an F. Plusses and minuses work as follows: 80-82 = B-; 83-86 = B; 87-89 = B+. Any decimal below .5 gets rounded down, any decimal of .5 or above gets rounded up. So 86.4 becomes 86, which is a B; 86.5 becomes 87, which is a B+.

COURSE POLICIES

1. Attendance: You are expected to attend each class, to have finished the reading assignment before class, and to participate in discussion.
2. Respect: Mutual respect and courtesy are necessary for the course to be a success.
 - a) I hope that you will question me, the reading, and each other, as doing so is essential to the learning process. We should do so in an environment that is safe and respectful of our varied opinions. Let's challenge each other based on ideas, analysis, and evidence, and not based on insults or personal attacks.
 - b) All enrolled students are warmly welcome in this course, regardless of gender, ethnicity, immigration status, national origin, religion, class, race, disability, etc.
 - c) No side conversations, listening to music, or reading outside materials in class.
 - d) Cell phones: Turn off your cell phones before class starts; Professor Zahler and the GE have the right to answer any in-class calls or messages that you receive.
3. Computers: Do not use a computer during class time.
 - a) Computers are wonderful, powerful machines. Unfortunately, they are also very distracting and can reduce our ability to think and learn. Numerous studies have found that, during class, students spend most of the time using the computer for activities unrelated to the class, which distracts them and nearby students.
 - a. Articles on the subject: Article 1; Article 2; Article 3
 - b) Numerous studies have also found that students learn more when they take notes using pen and paper than when they use a computer.
 - a. Articles on the subject: Article 1; Article 2; Article 3
 - c) I will make exceptions to this policy for students that have specific, documented need to use a computer in class. In this circumstance, you should sit at the back of the class in order to distract fewer other students.
4. Late assignments:

You will lose points on late assignments at a rate of 10pts/24-hours. You can get an extension if you have a legitimate reason (e.g. health problems, a death in the family, imprisonment, alien abduction, etc.). Contact your professor or GE to request an extension. Snowboarding on Mt. Bachelor is not a legitimate reason.
5. You may not sell class notes to other students. You may not use Canvas for commercial purposes or to advertise items for sale. Use of services that sell course notes is prohibited because they contradict the educational purpose of this course.

COMMUNICATIONS AND TECHNOLOGY

Our class will communicate through our Canvas site. Announcements and emails are archived there and automatically forwarded to your UO email, and can even reach you by text. Check and adjust your settings under Account > Notifications.

At the beginning of each week, I will post a recording called "Starting Week 2," "Starting Week 3," etc. In this video I will provide information about upcoming assignments, give important class announcements, review any necessary information, etc.

Your GE and professor will host scheduled "live" office hours through Zoom each week, and you can also contact us directly to request a meeting. Get in touch with us to ask about assignments, course content, something in the reading or lecture you want to discuss further, or just to let us know how you're doing.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

In this course, we will learn not only a body of historical information but also will refine a set of intellectual skills that apply to any professional career path you will pursue. In this course you can expect to learn:

- Major political, economic, and social trends of Latin America, from pre-contact through the late colonial periods.

- How factors such as religion, political administration, race, gender, and social status operated in the contexts of conquest and empire.
- How the discipline of history uses primary and secondary sources, and works with inconsistent or contradictory evidence.
- How to discuss socially-sensitive topics such as race, gender, sex, and violence in a respectful manner that promotes learning and inquiry.
- How to participate in a discourse with dissenting opinions in a manner that is respectful and intellectually productive, whether those opinions come from historical actors, scholars, or fellow classmates.
- How to use critical questions and evidence-based analysis to investigate complex situations.
- Improved communication skills: how to write a clear essay with an evidence-based argument and (hopefully) how to answer/ask questions in public.

SCHEDULE

Class Schedule:

Our course is scheduled to meet on Tu/Th for 80 minutes, for a total of 160 minutes per week of lecture and discussion. However, I will post pre-recorded lectures and we will meet in person for less time. Watch the weekly pre-recorded lectures, which will take roughly 80 minutes, before Tuesday's class. Our in-class meetings, then, will last approximately 40 minutes per session, or 80 minutes per week. So, each week, of the 160 minutes we are scheduled to meet, you will spend half the time watching pre-recorded lectures and half the time in class.

A brief note on the reading assignments:

- Before each class time, you are expected to have completed the day's pre-recorded lectures, the reading, and the Reading Essay.
- At the beginning of the week, watch the "Getting Started" video for notes on the week's readings and assignments.
- Look at the Readings Suggestions (Canvas Supplementals) before you start the weekly readings for background and context.
